

Below is a screen shot of a page on the kidshealth.org website that refers girls to Planned Parenthood in their teen section. The relevant text has been highlighted in yellow to make it easier to see. The page can be accessed online here.

The screenshot shows a web browser window with the URL kidshealth.org/teen/expert/sex_health/planb_cost.html. The page features a navigation bar with 'TeensHealth from Nemours' and tabs for 'For Parents', 'For Kids', and 'For Teens'. A left sidebar contains a search bar and a list of categories: Teens Home, Your Body, Your Mind, Sexual Health, Food & Fitness, Recipes, Drugs & Alcohol, Expert Answers, Diseases & Conditions, Infections, School & Jobs, Staying Safe, and En Español. The main content area is titled 'Expert Answers on...' and includes a breadcrumb trail: KidsHealth > Teens > Expert Answers on... > Sex > What If We Can't Afford Plan B?. A 'Listen' icon is present. The text of the expert answer reads: 'My girlfriend and I were having sex and the condom broke. We immediately went to the pharmacist to buy Plan B but we didn't have the money. Is there anything we can do?' - Julio*. The following paragraph states: 'It's frustrating when you take all the right precautions and things still go wrong. It might help to check with your local health clinic, like Planned Parenthood, or with an STD clinic. They may provide Plan B at a lower cost than drugstores, and some may even offer it for free. Ask for payment options, and let them know your situation.' A note at the bottom of the article says: 'All couples who have sex should be tested for STDs, but this is especially true if a condom has broken (or if a couple doesn't use a condom).' The article is reviewed by Larissa Hirsch, MD, with a date of January 2010. On the right side, there is a 'Partner Message' banner for 'What's your babysitting style?' featuring a photo of a woman and a child, and a 'Take Our Quizzes!' button. A 'Making a Change Your Personal Plan' logo is located in the bottom left corner of the page content.
